UNIVERSITY IS HOST OF SCHOOL TEACHERS

Educators From Every Section of State Attend Two Days' Conference.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Charlottesville, Va., November 1.—High school and preparatory school teachers from every part of the State assembled at the University of Virginia this morning for a two-day conference with the faculty of the university. The sessions were held in Madison Hall.

A stirring address of welcome was delivered by President Alderman, who also took active part in the discussions. Professor Charles G. Maples presided. The principal topics discussed at the morning and afternoon sessions were college entrance requirements and the granting of credit for college entrance examinations. Dean Morris Page, of the university, led the discussion. He explained in detail the operation of the university's practice in this respect and took up the statement as to admission by certificate, which he fully expounded, answering numerous questions as he went along.

The following took part in the discussion: Professor Ormond Stone, University of Virginia; Dr. R. E. Blackwell, president of Randolph-Macon College; Professor A. L. Lincoln, Charlotte High School; Professor C. V. Shoemaker, Woodstock High School; Professor W. M. Thornton, University of Virginia; Professor A. R. Hoxton, Episcopal High School; Dr. Thomas Fitzhugh, University of Virginia; Dr. Robert M. Bird, University of Virginia; Professor W. E. Garnett, New London Academy; Professor James C. Harwood, John Marshall High School; Professor James C. Johnston, Harrisonburg High School; Professor Richard A. Dobie, Norfolk; Professor E. H. Russell, president State Normal School; Rev. James G. Johnson, Charlottesville; Professor George McK. Bain, Norfolk High School; Professor W. H. Keister, Harrisonburg.

The discussion centered around the question: to what extent should high school training be made to conform to the demands of college entrance requirements, and to what extent should it be devoted to the needs of the student who does not plan to enter college? Where to place the emphasis is one of the points this conference will try to determine. There is a strong feeling that as far as practicable the high school should pursue its work in the two-fold way—to prepare the young for higher training in college and university, but at the same time not to lose sight for a moment of the other phase of the work, namely, to train the student who will not enter college to be a good citizen and an efficient worker in the line of endeavor he may choose. In other words, the basis of high school work should be what is required for admission to college and what is required for preparation for life.

It is believed that the deliberations of the conference will result in valuable suggestions to the State and National Boards of Education. One thing was emphasized by nearly every speaker. There is vast need for provision for the higher education of girls. In line with this, figures compiled by Professor Maples had telling effect. In 1911 the graduates from the leading high schools of the State were: boys, 81; girls, 243.

The teachers were guests of the university at dinner this evening. The delegates include R. C. Stearnes, E. C. Glass, E. W. Pruitt, E. H. Hatcher, R. Lucas Lincoln, James C. Harwood, William Holmes Davis, W. Carson, W. R. Smith, E. H. Osbourne, W. H. DeLoach, J. Clarence Elliott, Thomas W. Bittle, N. D. Cool, George McK. Bain, Henry Machin, F. W. Dunn, Charles W. Burr, E. M. Hunter, E. J. Cooley, James G. Johnson, A. C. Kimler, W. H. Keister, A. R. Hoxton, C. F. Hoffman, Arthur W. Stuer, Charles P. Cowherd, Hugh D. Hite, J. W. Everett, C. H. Gilkerson, Conrad Johnson, E. F. Shewmake, Jr., Fred M. Alexander, J. Carter Walker, Richard A. Dobie, Emma S. Verby, C. A. Edwards, H. F. Button, T. W. Hendricks, P. M. Tyler, J. Grier Pressly, W. N. Willis, Evelyn T. McNair, Ira S. Anthony, Jack M. Davis, Eugene Hall, H. Merson, M. L. Fearnow, E. F. Burkhead, Jr., R. Q. Lowry, F. M. Martin, Margaret M. Williams, R. B. Natus, George W. Yawn.

Remarkable Christmas Present

Among the curious Christmas presents of this year will be one for a man of national reputation, which has been all year in the making. Way last January the present was decided upon, and a friend of the prominent gentleman requested the Burrelle Press Clipping Bureau, of New York, to watch every paper in America and to take up every item which appeared concerning the man.

The clipping bureau people followed instructions, and now present the history of one year in the life of this special man. The history ends just after election, and the 26,447 newspaper items found include everything, from a three-line editorial mention to full-page illustrated stories. These have been mounted on 3,200 great sheets of Irish linen paper and bound into three massive volumes.

At the head of each item is the name and date of paper clipped from, this information having been put in with a book typewriter. The words thus inserted amount to 125,352. In actual time, a very strict record of which has been kept, the work has required sixty-four working days throughout the year, and has kept in employment during that time thirty people as readers, clippers, sorters, mounters and binders. Every newspaper of importance is represented. This is merely a specimen of some of the unique orders which get into the Burrelle Bureau, for the extent to which clippings are used by individuals and by business concerns seems to be remarkable.

first of the four trains bearing the curious outfit of America's biggest circus will arrive in the city over the Seaboard Air Line about 4 o'clock. The other trains will follow closely, and it is expected that the entire show will be in soon after daylight.

Parade Three Miles Long.

As fast as the trains are unloaded at Bowe Street, two blocks above the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac freight depot, their cargoes will be whisked away to Broad and Boulevard, where the show grounds are located. The first event of interest after the building of the city of tents will be the parade. It will leave the grounds at 10 o'clock and proceed as follows: Through Boulevard to Monument Avenue, down Franklin to Fifth Street, to Broad, and up Broad and back to the "lot." The many thousands of people in Richmond who have never seen the Ringling circus have a surprise in prospect, for the Western showmen have the reputation of giving the finest street parades on record. This procession is nearly three miles in length, and in it will be seen 1,256 people, over 600 horses and many menagerie animals displayed in open cages.

Two performances will be given. This afternoon the doors will be opened at 1 o'clock and to-night at 7 o'clock, the performance starting an hour later. This will give visitors ample time in which to see the menagerie, which is credited with being the finest zoological collection in America.

The performances will begin with the historical spectacle, "Joan of Arc," presented on a stage filling almost an entire side of the main tent. The story is told by a cast of 1,200 characters, and diversions are offered by a ballet of 500 dancing girls and a chorus of 400 voices. The regular circus program will be new to Richmond. The Ringlings are said to at all times present something different from other circuses. There are 375 performers, the majority of whom are foreigners appearing for the first time in America.

Breaks Up Here.

The Ringlings are owners of the Barnum and Bailey show and the Forepaugh and Sells Brothers organization. With this circus they carry around with them a traveling city lighted with its own electric lights and maintaining all kinds of shops, a post-office, hospital and hotel, where 4,000 meals are cooked and eaten every day in the week. To-night the last show of the season will be given the organization packing up during the darkness of night for its long homeward trip to Baraboo, Wis. The performers will leave on special trains for New York and Chicago. A depot will be established on the grounds, and tickets to all parts of the country will be sold there and baggage checked by an authorized baggage agent.

CONVENIENT ADJOURN.

Christian Churches Held Four Days Session at Sunbury.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Suffolk, Va., November 1.—The Eastern Virginia Annual Christian Conference adjourned this afternoon after a four days' session at Damascus Christian Church, in Sunbury, N. C. Rev. C. H. Rowland, of Franklin, was elected president for the coming year; Rev. L. W. Johnson, secretary, and William H. Jones, Jr., treasurer. There were over 200 delegates present during the four days. This was the most interesting conference ever held.

Barn Destroyed by Fire.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Harrisonburg, Va., November 1.—D. C. Reher's barn, one of the finest in Rockingham County, was destroyed by fire last night about a mile east of town. Nine hundred bushels of wheat, seventy-five tons of hay and 1,000 bushels of corn were burned. The blaze was seen miles away, and hundreds of persons, many going in automobiles, went to the scene and fought the flames away from the family residence. The insurance covers about $2,500 of the loss. A hot box in a clover trailer caught fire and communicated the flames to the barn.

Holland Speaks at Franklin.

Franklin, Va., November 1.—Colonel C. E. Holland, member of the United States House of Representatives from the Second Congressional District, and Democratic candidate for re-election, addressed the people of this town at Seminary Hall to-night at 8 o'clock. A large number of people, including a number of women, turned out to hear the Congressman, who is very popular in this community. His speech was along the lines of the usual campaign speech, and was well received by the people.

UPTOWN MODEL

Here is a boot that you should at least try on. It stands out even among the dressy Fall and Winter Regals.

UPTOWN MODEL — mannish, fetching, comfortable and (pardon the expressive slang!) "swell." The high toe permits wearing a small size. The short fore-part, Cuban heel, high instep and arch make even that small size look smaller. It's a shoe that puts appreciation into the eyes of husbands and sweethearts.

A value hard to find outside of Regal Stores.
